Truck Tax Action May Come Today

Senate Committee Believed in Favor Of Axle-Mile Tax

COLUMBUS, O. (AP)—This may be the day the legislative dam breaks on the long-anticipated Ohio highway financing program.

After seven weeks study, the Ohio Senate Taxation Committee appeared ready to adopt a program which would tax truckers and the average motorist 40 million dollars a year to build needed inter-city arterial highways.

The key Senate committee reportedly is leaning toward an axle-mile tax on big trucks which already has been approved by the Republican-controlled House and Democratic Gov. Frank J. Lausche.

Senate committee approval of the axle-mile tax bill—designed to tax trucks with three or more axles on the number of miles they travel—will be a signal to all legislators that a three-way deal has been closed.

The deal will involve a rural-city compromise on additional school aid funds for city districts and a rural-city compromise on a bill to give both cities and rural areas an even, 5½ million dollar break on street and road maintenance funds.

Off in anther corner of the capitol, out of reach of the thick-as-flies lobbyists, Senate and House conferees reached final agreement on a record $835,877,870 budget to operate the state for the next two years.

The House probably will act today on the committee's report. Both houses must approve before the big money bill goes to Lausche's desk. The state has been unable to spend a dime since Tuesday midnight for lack of an appropriations bill. Appropriations approved by the 1951 Legislature expired at 12:01 a. m. Wednesday.

The agreed new figure is only about one-half million dollars above the corrected recommendation of Lausche. His original budget figure was announced as 831 million dollars, but later corrections boosted it to about 835 millions.

There were these other developments as the Legislature built up a head of steam for the final adjournment dash:

The Senate passed 30-0 a House-approved measure to require all state boards and commissions to open all their meetings to the public beginning next Jan. 31. The delay in the effective date was to give the Ohio Un-American Acivities Commission exemption from the new law. The commission dies Jan. 31. Only other exception is for pardon and parole board hearings at state penal institutions.

The House passed 117-3 a bill appropriating $546,162 to pay sundry claims against the state. The measure now goes to the Senate.

The House approved and sent to the Senate a bill to increase the maximum aid-for-aged benefit $5 a month—from $60 to $65. Speedy Senate approval is likely.

The Senate passed 27-0 a House-approved bill to revise laws regulating state licensing boards. It requires Senate confirmation of all of the governor's appointments to such boards and sets up a review board—made up of the secretary of state, the state treasurer and the state auditor—to hear complaints.

The Senate also passed 27-0 a House-approved bill to increase from $550,000 to $600,000 a year a tax on utilities to finance administration of the state utilities commission.

The Senate passed 26-3 and sent to the House a bill requiring that the cost, source of funds and authority for publication be printed on all publications issued at public expense.

A Cleveland representative, John V. Corrigan (D), took the House floor to charge that lobbyists have killed chances for passage of a bill to tighten Ohio's regulation of public utilities.

Reciprocal Trade Bill Up for Senate Vote

WASHINGTON (AP)—A bill to extend the reciprocal trade agreements law for one year comes in the Senate today with strong bipartisan backing assuring passage.

The present law expired June 12, and administration leaders are anxious to get it back on the books.

Second Rain, Hail Storm Hits Galion

Telephone, Electric Service Disrupted; Basements Flooded

Special to The Star

GALION—The second storm to hit Galion in two days brought torrential rain and hail in cloudburst proportions when it hit at 4 p.m., Wednesday. The Wednesday storm hit an hour earlier than the Tuesday squall.

The rain flooded basements and streets, disrupted more telephone service and power. What damage the high winds did not do in some sections of the city Tuesday, the rain made up Wednesday. The storm was accompanied by considerable lightning and some wind of lesser velocity than Tuesday.

The Galion fire department made four runs again Wednesday, as a result of the storm. The first call at 4:30 p.m., was to the home of Dora Hetrick, when she feared that she would be marooned in her home by the water that was rising in her yard and to the first floor. She was reassured by firemen as they waited for the water to recede when the rain slackened.

At 4:45 p.m., an electric light pole at 220 W. Atwood St., started burning at the top when wires were broken by the storm. Firemen made their third call at 6:25 p.m., when wires had fallen down on a car and scorched it. Later, they were called to the home of C. O. Ward who reported that he smelled gas fumes. Firemen found that two feet of water in the basement and put out a gas heater.

Electricity was off in the east and south sections of the city due to 2,300-volt power line being

Marengo Man Killed, Another Hurt in Crash

Bert Davis, 30, of Marengo, was killed instantly at 6:45 a.m. today in a two-car crash on Route 3, two miles south of Westerville, in which another Marengo man was badly injured.

Davis was a passenger in a car driven by Arthur Burch, 39, of Marengo, who suffered severe lacerations about the body and face.

Driver of the other car, which was approaching from the south, was Howard L. Gill, 37, of Columbus, who is in a Columbus hospital, with a possible skull fracture, severe lacerations of the face and body and internal injuries. Both of the injured men were taken to Grant Hospital.

State highway patrolmen in Columbus said the Marengo car was headed south when the northbound Gill car went out of control and spun around on the highway. The rear of the Gill car collided with the front of the Marengo driver's car. It is believed that the Marengo men were both employed in Columbus, and that they were on their way to work.

Damage to both cars was extensive.

Investigation of the accident is incomplete, patrolmen said.

Air Budget Showdown Due Today

GOP Counting on Ike Appeal to Beat Back Attempts at Hike

WASHINGTON (AP)—House Republican leaders leaned heavily today on a direct appeal by President Eisenhower to beat back a Democratic attempt to boost the Air Force budget.

And Democrats counted confidently on a public roll call vote to counterbalance the Eisenhower appeal.

The showdown is due late today when the House votes finally on a bill to appropriate $34,434,140,500 in new funds for the Army, the Navy and the Air Force for the fiscal year which started yesterday.

The big issue is whether the House should add $1,175,000,000 to the $11,048,000,000 recommended by the appropriations committee for the Air Force.

The extra money, provided in a series of amendments drafted by Rep. Mahon (D - Tex), is the amount Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, retired Air Force chief of staff, has said is the minimum needed to attain a goal of 143 Air Force wings by 1957.

The committee and most House Republicans are supporting the Eisenhower-backed 120 - wing Air Force. (There are 30 to 75 planes in a wing.)

The committee cut 240 million dollars from the revised Eisenhower Air Force budget. The bill carries $5,030,000,000 less than was

Richwood Grain Elevator Gets 1st Load of Wheat

First harvested wheat to be brought to an area elevator was reported today at the Walton and Case Grain Elevator at Richwood.

Roscoe Duff and Sons of Washinton, C.H., brought in the first load of 266½ bushels to the elevator today about 10 a.m. It was cut Wednesday.

The No. 1 wheat had test weight of 60 pounds and moisture of 12.84 and is runnning around 32 bushels to the acre, a spokesman at the elevator said.

The wheat was brought from Washington, C.H. to Richwood—a distance of 69 miles—due to the scarcity of grain storage space in the state.

Last year, the first load of wheat didn't arrive in Richwood until after the Fourth of July, the spokesman said.

'Little Truce Talks' Stalled Over Rhee's Price for Armistice

Wants U.S. Assurance Of United Korea

South Korean Leader And Ike's Envoy Hold Sixth Secret Meeting

SEOUL (AP)—President Syngman Rhee's price for an armistice—U. S. assurance of a unified Korea—temporarily stalled the U. S.-South Korea "little truce talks" today.

Neither Rhee nor President Eisenhower's envoy, Walter S. Robertson, would comment after their sixth secret meeting this morning, but a reliable source said the talks are stalled while both sides consider their stands.

No time was set for the next meeting.

Rhee apparently is demanding unification or more war, and the U. S. is holding out for unification by negotiation.

The aging South Korean leader maintains that it will take arms, not words, to unify Korea.

South Korea's foreign minister, Pyun Yung Tai, declared his country has no faith in political conferences and will agree to take part in talks aimed at peaceful unification only if a time limit is imposed.

Pyun said Rhee "does not reject" Eisenhower's pledge that the U. S. will work to unify North and South Korea in talks with the Communists.

But, Pyun stressed, Rhee wants to limit the time the talks can drag on. Rhee often has called for a 90-day deadline with the war to resume if there is no solution.

Pyun said in an interview "we would welcome" peaceful unification, but added, "From our past experience we know no such unification can be achieved. That is our conviction."

However, Pyun expressed hope the Rhee-Robertson talks may yet succeed.

"We are still groping for common ground," he said. "There is no need to be pessimistic."

Meanwhile, Washington officials predicted a climax in the truce crisis within hours, with a clear answer whether Rhee will accept the armistice terms agreed upon by the Allies and Reds or flaunt them and try to fight on alone.

There were strong indications the U. S. would go ahead with a truce even if Rhee doesn't agree, and a well-informed source said he believes the Reds would accept on that basis.

The Rhee-Robertson talks apparently have lasted longer than was anticipated and a solution is not yet in sight.

A competent source revealed Wednesday that President Rhee last Saturday had told Robertson all his demands had been met by President Eisenhower. But the next day, Rhee produced new demands which Robertson quickly turned down. The source said one of these demands was a 90-day limit on a post-truce political conference.

Faced with Robertson's rejection Rhee said he would write "in his own hand" another version of his stand. This was relayed to Robertson Wednesday night.

Robertson undoubtedly discussed the message when he went to the presidential mansion for the latest meeting, which lasted an hour and 45 minutes.

Ike's Envoy Will Leave in 2 Days

SEOUL (AP) — President Eisenhower's truce envoy will leave for home within two days whether or not he is successful in his efforts to win South Korea over to a truce, informed sources said today.

The sources said the departure of Assistant Secretary of State Walter S. Robertson would not mean the door is closed on a U. S.-South Korea truce alliance. They said Rhee apparently would have to show a real change of heart if Robertson is to stay any longer.

The sources said Rhee knows there will be no more overtures by the U. S. before a truce is signed if he doesn't agree with Robertson.

Foreign Aid Bill Gets Past Budget Cutters

But Slashes May Come Later in Senate

WASHINGTON (AP)-The $5,318,000,000 foreign aid bill has emerged triumphant over budget cutters in its first Senate floor test, but Republican leaders practically invited some slashing on the second round.

With Democrats providing the bulk of the votes on the key test, the Senate leadership turned back all reductions before the body passed the authorization measure late yesterday.

However, Senate Republican Leader Taft of Ohio and other top Republicans assured their colleagues they were perfectly free to vote to cut later when the foreign aid money bill comes up.

The authorization bill merely fixes the ceiling for sums that can be appropriated for the program in the fiscal year which began yesterday.

However, the initial Senate action represented something of a victory for the Eisenhower administration.

The President had submitted a $5,474,000,000 bill to Congress as a rock bottom figure. The measure passed by the Senate was only 156 million under this request.

The house voted 320 millions less than the Senate, or $4,998,000,000. The differences now will be compromised in a conference between representatives of the two chambers.

The administration itself had knocked more than two billions of the $7,600,000,000 program proposed for the year by former President Truman.

The money carried in the bill will provide military and economic assistance for the free world nations. The proportion of aid to Asiatic nations is doubled in comparison with last year. But the measure also puts emphasis on a buildup of North Atlantic Treaty Organization air strength in Western Europe.

NATO commanders have described air power as the weakest link in the forces being assembled to resist possible Communist attacks.

A proposed amendment — designed to prod France into moving faster toward independence for the Indochinese states of Viet Nam, Cambodia and Laos — was rejected by a 64—17 rollcall vote.

Three successive amendments were offered by Sen.Russell Long (D—La) to cut the authorization bill as the three-day debate neared its close yesterday.

The first two—for a 1 ½ billion cut—lost by identical 48-34 votes.

But the last, for a 320 million reduction to take the total down to that in the House bill, was narrowly beaten, 42-38. On that one, 24 Democrats, 17 Republicans and one Independent joined to defeat it. Voting for it were 22 Republicans and 16 Democrats.

Before this final test, Sen.Ferguson (R-Mich) said, "No one should feel that because he votes for this bill he votes for the full amounts in it."

Taft and Sen. Knowland (R-Calif), acting Senate leader while Taft nurses a hip ailment, joined in stressing that the appropriations bill to come along later would actually determine the sums to be spent.

The administration was unable to defeat some amendments that it opposed.

One of these would fix July 1, 1955, for the closing down of the Mutual Security Administration and its power to contract for aid items. But an additional year would be given for the winding up of all spending on economic aid and two years on military items.

County Lists Year's Third Polio Case

A third case of polio this year in Marion County was reported today by the county health department.

Twenty-two-month-old Allen Ray Collins, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Collins of Caledonia, was admitted Wednesday to Children's Hospital in Columbus where his illness was diagnosed as polio.

He had been ill of an ear infection for about one week. Two children having contact with the child recently have been given injections of gamma globulin, health department officials reported.

The first Marion County polio victim this year, Dixie Cottrill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Cottrill of 450 Avondale Ave., was discharged from Children's Hospital June 15. She had been a patient there since May 20.

Second county resident to contract the illness was 9-year-old James Ricky Leibold, son of Mr. and Mrs. Deon Leibold of near LaRue. His illness was diagnosed as polio on June 3.

Display of Flags On July 4 Urged By Legion Leader

Every street in Marion an avenue of Flags is the slogan of the American Legion for the forthcoming July 4th Holiday.

The appeal to fly the American Flag on Independence Day is made by Bird-McGinnis Post No. 162, through the commander, Dr. G. W. Strauss. "The Flag of the United States is a symbol of liberty and progress," the commander states. We should be proud to fly the Flag every day but on this special holiday it should be flown from every buidling and on every street. he adds.

Legionnaires of Marion consider it their sacred obligation to encourage proper dispay of the Stars and Stripes by citizens of this community and are asking the cooperation of churches, schools and civic leaders in the patriotic observation.

Teachers Hear Resolution On Censorship

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Delegates to the convention of the National Education Association get their first look today at resolutions to be voted on tomorrow in the last big business session of the 520,000-member organization.

Two proposed resolutions which have been made public by NEA committees would condemn censorship of teachers in American classrooms and call upon teachers to answer all questions freely whenever their loyalty is questioned by investigators.

These are included in the resolutions Committee Report scheduled for presentation today.

Tomorrow's activity winding up the big convention will include election of officers and addresses by U. S. Atty. Gen. Herbert Brownell and Lewis K. Gough, National American Legion commander.

Plan Bill Broadening Social Secruity Program

WASHINGTON (AP)—Ten Democrats and one Independent in the Senate propose to introduce a measure promised by the Republicans in last year's presidential campaign: broadening of social security coverage.

Sen. Lehman (D-Lib-NY) said in a statement yesterday the bill would meet "promises . . . made during the last campaign to enlarge the scope and coverage of social security."

President Eisenhower has not recommended changes he discussed during the campaign. GOP congressional leaders have postponed action until next year pending a survey of social security needs.

Lehman said his bill would bring 13 million more persons into the system, including farmers, lawyers, public employes and others. Maximum old age payments, he said, would be raised from $85 to $135 a month.

Tourists bring in $600,000,000 annually to Michigan.

Hoover Lauds Ike's Plan For Food Relief

NEW YORK (AP)—Former President Herbert Hoover says President Eisenhower's proposal to send American surplus food abroad "will bring results in saving human life and building friendship."

Hoover, head of European food relief after World War I, said yesterday in a statement:

"Twice before, after both World Wars I and II, the skill and energy of the American farmer and the generosity of our people have saved uncounted lives."

Describing as a "constructive recommendation" the President's request to Congress for authority to distribute surplus food to famine areas overseas, Hoover added:

"An additional reason could be given. These surplus food accumulations of our government are perishable, and to withhold them until they spoil is unthinkable."

Grounds for Suspicion By George Sokolsky

Robert Morris, the brilliant counsel for the Jenner committee, during the investigation of Harold Glasser, made these remarks:

SOKOLSKY

"Mr. Chairman, the purpose of those questions is that witnesses who have appeared before our committee and who have been identified and about whom there has been evidence of their own Communist activity, when presented with the evidence or when asked questions about that evidence have invariably invoked their privilege against incrimination.

"At the same time very often, as in the case of a university, they go back to the university and when asked by the university authorities whether or not they have been members of the Communist party, we find that almost without exception they deny membership at that time, the difference being of course that when they are asked by the university officials they are not asked under oath and before a tribunal such as this to be held accountable in a court of law for denial if it can be proved to the contrary. . ."

MY CHILDREN came home from a Memorial Day ceremony up in the Berkshires, where I live during the summer, to tell me that some clergyman they had for the occasion said that these congressional committees are no good because they make Americans suspicious of each other.

Well, you would imagine that some suspicions would have been aroused among us when it was discovered that the super-secret Manhattan Project housed a den of spies who stole the atom bomb, gave it to Russia, and placed this nation at the mercy of an enemy. That is a very suspicious business, to say the least.

Then in the case of Alger Hiss, the Earl Jowitt wrote a book to prove apparently that the FBI faked the evidence. Sober men should have become suspicious at the testimony in the two Hiss trials, the Remington trials, the testimony concerning the Institute of Pacific Relations, that something very foul has been going on.

I HAVE ON hand more than 150 cases of United States government officials who have taken refuge in the Fifth Amendment in matters relating either to espionage or subversion.

That is a small number in relationship to the total employment of the federal government.

However, the significance of this picture is that most of these persons were either in a policy-making position or were attached to great men who made our policies.

For instance, this obscure person, Harold Glasser, was in 1947, adviser to the United States delegation to the Council of Foreign Ministers meeting in Moscow.

This 1947 conference was one of the most important.

Yet, Harold Glasser has time after time refused to testify on matters dealing constructively with subversion or espionage on the ground that to do so would incriminate him.

-:-

OUGHT NOT that to make one suspicious? For what does it mean when a man takes refuge in the Fifth Amendment?

It means that according to his own knowledge and belief, he being familiar with the nature of his own conduct, his testimony concerning himself would lead to his conviction in a court of law of a statutory crime which he did, in fact, commit.

The Constitution safeguards a person from testifying against himself. The person who has committed no crime or participated in none, or who has not associated with criminals, does not require the protection of the Fifth Amendment because nothing he can say could involve him in a crime.

FOR INSTANCE, take the case of Julius J. Joseph, who has had quite a career in government.

He is asked a simple question: "Mr. Morris—Now, were you a member of the Communist party at that time, Mr. Joseph?"

If you or I were asked such a question under oath, we could, in all conscience say, "No!" That would be the end of it. We know that no one on earth could prove otherwise. But not Mr. Joseph.

He came along with this:

"Mr. Morris—I must decline to answer that question, for the following reasons:

"I think the inquiry is a violation of my rights under the First Amendment of the Constiution, and I think furthermore that I am going to exercise my privilege under the Fifth Amendment of the Constitution, not to testify myself."

So, naturally, I am suspicious. I am also curious to know what this fellow did that would incriminate him if he told about it.

Cardington Municipal Building Proposed

CARDINGTON — A proposal to erect a new municipal building in Cardington was discussed at a meeting Tuesday of the Business Men's Association. Paul A. Richardson, president of the association, said many details still needed to be worked out on the proposal.

The proposed building would house the fire department, mayor's office, and council chambers. More details are expected in the near future, but it will be some time before final plans are announced.

Wilbur's Vacation

By Hal Boyle

HOMETOWN, U. S. A. (AP)—One of the worst things about a vacation is the fact that when you get back home you have to brag about what a swell time you had—whether you really did or not.

Wilbur Peeble, America's average man, decided this year he simply wouldn't do it.

So the first thing he did on returning to work after his vacation was to climb up on his desk and call out:

"Fellow employes! Will you please gather around? I have an important message."

The surprised office staff immediately clustered around his desk, including the boss, Leroy J. McFumble, who had been standing at the door and scowling at employes late for work. Mr. McFumble always did this on the days he himself got in on time.

"Ordinarily a man wastes the first week he gets back from a vacation answering questions about where he went and what he did," said Wilbur. "Nobody really cares what kind of a vacation he had, but everybody thinks it is polite to ask.

"So I am going to save you all that breath by telling you here and now about my vacation. That way we can get the whole subject over in five minutes.

"I had a lousy vacation. Trellis Mae—that's my wife—and I stayed at a place called Quagmire Heights-By-The-Sea. It is run by a retired bank robber, judging from the prices.

"The food was so awful that Trellis Mae went to bed for a week after the first meal. It rained all day 11 of the 14 days we were there. The only book in the hotel library was 'The Bobbsey Twins at the Seashore.' I read it four times—and then began to dream about it at night.

"One day I played golf with a stranger, and he suggested a small side bet of $5 a hole just to make it interesting. This only cost me $45, as I decided not to play the second nine holes.

"The other two days I went swimming. The doctor says my sunburn is healing nicely, but I warn you that if you slap me on the back you lose a friend.

"We took some color photos, but I don't intend to make you look at them. Looking at somebody else's vacation snapshots is about as exciting as starting through a restaurant window at other people eating."

At this point the office employes broke into applause.

"Now, are there any questions?" asked Wilbur.

"Y-y-yes," said a stenographer. "Isn't one of your eyes discolored, Mr. Peeble? Did you meet with an accident?"

"It isn't discolored," said Wilbur, drawing a deep breath. "It's a black eye. No, I didn't bump into a door in the dark. I got it from a waiter.

"This waiter spilled a plate of soup on my white dinner jacket. When I got ready to leave the whole hotel staff stood there in line with their hands out for tips. Well, I went down the line putting $5 bills in this forest of palms until I came to the waiter. Just as a joke, I put in his hand the $1.50 bill the cleaners sent me for taking the soup out of my jacket.

"Well, he didn't think it was funny, and one word led to another. I was doing all right at first. I had my left thumb caught in his teeth and was swinging with my right, when my foot slipped. When I came to, I had this black eye. Any more questions? If not, let's consider my vacation a closed matter. I would like to forget it, too."

The group of listeners applauded Wilbur again, then went back to their desks, shaking their heads at the memory of his terrible ordeal. A few moments later Wilbur was summoned into the boss's office.

"Peeble," said Mr. McFumble. "I think you had better take a week off to rest up from your vacation. But do me a favor, will you? Spend it at home."

"Why?" asked Wilbur.

"Well," said his boss, "If you come back and scare those people out there with another hard luck story, they will want me to pay them double time even to take a vacation."

Report Cut Made In 'Voice' Program Funds

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower's request for new funds for the State Department's foreign information program was reported today to have been cut 31 per cent by a House appropriations subcommittee.

The 60 million dollars the group is reliably said to have recommended is $27,600,000 less than Eisenhower requested and $74,715,800, or 55 per cent, below the January request of former President Truman.

It contains no additional funds for construction or acquisition of broadcasting facilities for the Voice of America, and would require transfer of Voice headquarters from New York to Washington.

Party Planned for Ike On 37th Anniversary

WASHINGTON (AP)—Usually when President Eisenhower returns from playing golf he goes directly to his White House living quarters, but yesterday he was maneuvered into going back to his office for a while.

The reason: A surprise buffet party was in preparation and nobody wanted him barging in to spoil the surprise.

The occasion: the 37th anniversary of his marriage to Mamie Geneva Doud in Denver, Colo.

The party-givers: members of the White House staff, one of whom said the President was aware it was his wedding anniversary but knew nothing of the party in advance.

Cats have been known to live as long as 30 years.

Inside Labor

Nixon Keeps Busy

By Victor Riesel

Vice - President Nixon's golfing may soon make as much news as his chief's. But not at the Burning Tree Country Club. There are links run by the Columbia Country Club which has a proletarian member by the name of George Meany, a golfing enthusiast who has much less time for it now that he's president of the AFL.

RIESEL

Mutual friends, learning that Dick Nixon and Meany are both members of Columbia, are arranging a golf match between the two. Just so they can get to know each other better. Nixon is all for it. He and President Eisenhower are operating on the theory that there must be no grudges held against the labor leaders who opposed them last year.

-:-

THE NATION'S two top executives want to know personally as many of labor's top executives as possible. That's why the vice-president readily accepted an invitation recently to the Shoreham Hotel banquet of CIO, which led in the most bitter campaign attacks on Nixon. When Nixon got to the banquet he found himself sitting next to his severest critic — Walter Reuther.

They grinned and never brought up the campaign.

They talked quietly and agreed that they had a common objective on the international front, anyway. Nixon, who is a good friend of the CIO's militant young secretary-treasurer, Jim Carey, Electrical Union chief, then got up and kidded Jim.

In fact, the Veep was right at home in CIO. Just a few days before he had been luncheon host to the CIO Steelworkers' leader, Dave McDonald, and McDonald's legislative man, Frank Hoffman. Along with a White House aide, Max Raab, they had a long talk in Nixon's Capitol "hideaway."

MCDONALD told the vice-president that CIO was more concerned over state labor laws, which curb picketing among other activities, than by Taft-Hartley.

The CIO official surprised Nixon by revealing that the unionists would not scream if the administration waited until next year to ease up the Taft-Hartley law.

McDonald added that his union's relationship with the steel industry and many of its new leaders was excellent and strikes seemed remote. Then they talked football.

Nixon plans to go on seeing the labor chiefs, whether or not they continue to oppose him politically.

TALE OF A JET — Last year the Carl Byoir public relations agency took on an aircraft company as a client.

Because that client was working on a new hush - hush jet fighting plane, the FBI had to clear Byoir, his wife and the 22 Byoir vice-presidents and their wives. Also scores of the client's executives.

When the investigations were completed and all found to be 100 per cent trustworthy, the public relations firm got started. Meanwhile, the jet job was finished.

The plane was secretly shipped abroad — to Marshal Tito, of all people. Last month, a brand new Soviet MIG - 15 crashed in Tito's Yugoslavia. This craft is one of the late Russian models, about which we know little.

But Tito has refused to permit any Western expert to examine it, even secretly, despite considerable pressure from our Intelligence people.

AT A RECENT high level parley GOP National Chairman Len Hall and other policy makers decided that the way to swift solution of the patronage problem of their party was the mass slashing of thousands of administrative jobs which actually kept the government functioning along Franklin Roosevelt's and Harry Truman's philosophical lines rather than those of the Republican party.

Hall was harrassed and unhappy under all the pressure, when he had a visitor who knew all about this patronage problem—one James A. Farley.

Big Jim told Hall to take it easy. When he was job - dispenser in FDR's first years, Farley revealed, the crisis was worse, for he was under a depression pressure to make jobs for the faithful after 12 years out of office.

Farley said it took him a full year to dig his way out, and Ike's been in only five months.

FOOTNOTE on the executed atomic spies. It will be shown some day that they were the master Soviet agents of spy rings with 40 operatives.

Most of these undercover men and women are known to our security agencies — and are under surveillance. But with only wire-tapped information (whole apartments were wired for sound) as evidence, these spies cannot be convicted unless someone else talks.

And will the champions of the executed couple please explain how two such "impoverished" people could maintain several apartments — which they did — in Manhattan. This can't be denied. There are addresses and rent payments for these "drops" and "covers."

Furthermore, the atomic spy rings were interlocked with the networks which included Alger Hiss.

But the biggest story, it seems to me, is in the identity of the persons who told the executed spies, as early as 1943, that we were making an atomic bomb. How did they know?

Prison Riot Psychology

Revolts against satellite governments of the Communist dictatorship of Russia continue to serve notice on the men in the Kremlin that their police-state security never can be perfect.

They are victims of the same psychology among their prisoners as prison boards and wardens here in the United States. No matter how secure they make their prisons, they are answerable to the prisoners if they go too far.

Either there is a riot when enough men become desperate enough to risk death to assert themselves, or there is a challenge from the accountants to prove the end justifies the terrific cost of keeping order against the prisoners' will.

Even the United States cannot afford to run an Alcatraz. It has been revealed after every riot in a prison with less-than-maximum security that prisoners will make trouble when conditions get so bad they have everything to gain and nothing to lose by challenging prison authority.

A generation has gone by since counter-revolutionists set up a dictatorship in Russia in the name of a people's rebellion. Ever since it began, observers have been wondering how long their police state could last.

It can last until all who must put up with it against their will risk their lives in organized efforts to destroy it.

No Politics Without Politics

Sen. Wiley of Wisconsin was talking about one of President Eisenhower's problems before an audience in New York last Thursday.

He said the President would have to crack down on Republicans who sabotaged his foreign policy. He said he was not proposing slavish following of a party line but Republicans would have to develop a sense of teamwork.

The President, he went on to explain, wants to keep existing frictions from growing worse and is willing to compromise. But, declared Sen. Wiley, who is chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, there can be such a thing as too much compromising. Renegades must stay in line or the Republican party will be in disorder.

Sen. Wiley has described in guarded language the dilemma of a non-politician in the White House trying to deal with politicians. It is no secret that President Eisenhower feels he should be above politics, because he is not an intense partisan. Yet, he must work with politicians to get what he wants.

Moreover, he must rely on politicians to give him what he needs. A few days ago they left him in the lurch on an appointee to head the U. S. Bureau of Mines, latest of a series of appointments which he never would have made had he been given better political advice.

In last year's presidential contest, Harry Truman's over-zealous politicking boomeranged against Adlai Stevenson. Americans were fed up with a kind of partisanship which put politics ahead of public welfare.

They liked the idea of Dwight Eisenhower's not being a politician at all but a figure who transcended partisanship. It is safe assumption they still like the idea—or perhaps it is an ideal.

Can a chief executive of the United States get what he wants under a two-party political system without playing the same game of politics as those who are determined to keep him from getting it

Two Birds With One Surplus

At the outset of the debate over whether or not Congress should give President Eisenhower blanket authority to dispose of surplus food, it's a pity things can't be called by their right names.

The United States has enormous surpluses acquired in the process of paying support prices to keep agricultural income from dwindling to the point where manufactured products could not be sold to farmers. That would set off a cycle of deflation.

The support prices were paid out of the U.S. Treasury. The commodities acquired belong to all the taxpayers. They represent, in this sense, a collectivized effort to stave off the same kind of agricultural depression which preceded the general depression of the thirties.

In other countries, there is chronic need of food. Even some countries which export food need it for their own consumer". But because they need foreign exchange desperately, they sell food abroad.

Americans, notoriously generous, would like to feed the hungry of the whole world. That is to their credit. But they cannot do it and would be foolish to try.

It is to their discredit that so many Americans do not understand why any systematic effort to set aside the law of Malthus concerning population and the food supply could be fatal both to them and the people they would like to help.

By dumping their surplus food abroad, however, they can earn momentary appreciation in the cold war for control of men's minds. They can kill two birds with one surplus.

It will infuriate countries with food to sell, but that will be their hard luck.

If all this were discussed for what it is, instead of as an issue of philanthropy, congressmen and their constituents could save themselves a vast deal of needless confusion.

Policy Reappraisal

By David Lawrence

Taft Called Turn on "Facts of Life" About U.N.

It is doubtful whether the American people have any idea of just what commitments are being made to involve the United States in military action in different parts of the world.

A case in point is the negotiation going on between President Eisenhower and President Syngman Rhee of the Republic of Korea.

For, in effect, the United States has agreed to 'go it alone" in Korea, irrespective of the United Nations, in the event of future aggression which the U. N. does not resolve to resist.

The languate of the proposed "mutual defense pact" with Korea is supposed to be identical with the text of the treaties of mutual defense, already ratified by the Senate, with the Phillippines and with Australia and New Zealand.

The pertinent articles read:

"Article IV: Each party recognizes that an armed attack in the Pacific area on either of the parties would be dangerous to its own peace and safety and declares that it would act to meet the common danger in accordance with its constitutional processes.

"Any such armed attack and all measures taken as a result thereof shall be immediately reported to the Security Council of the United Nations.

"Such measures shall be terminated when the Security Council has taken the measures necessary to restore and maintain international peace and security.

"Article V: For the purpose of Article IV, an armed attack on any of the parties is deemed to include an armed attack on the metropolitan territory or any of the parties, or on the island territories under its jurisdiction in the Pacific or on its armed forces, public vessels or aircraft in the Pacific."

The languate of these treaties makes it clear that the action to be taken is irrespective of the Security Council of the U.N., and the only requirement is that the measures taken must be "immediately reported" and that they must be terminated when the Security Council takes the "measures necessary to restore and maintain international peace and security."

This is the same text that was used in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. It is doubtful whether the average man in America knows what this very tactfully worded language means in terms of sending American troops overseas.

In the case of Korea, it means that, if trouble arises as it did in June 1950, the Republic of Korea would expect the United States to act at once without reference to the United Nations Security Council.

There is a distinct difference in the case of NATO because all 12 countries are bound together to take concerted action.

In the Pacific, bilaterial alliances have been set up instead of a regional arrangement encompassing all the countries with interests in that area.

Great Britain and France have a direct interest in the Pacific but are not obligated to come to the aid of the countries with which the United States has signed or will be signing mutual defense pacts.

An examination of the language of the recently ratified treaties with the Philippines and with Australia and New Zealand shows that, if the same text is used in the treaty wiht Korea, it does not necessarily mean instantaneous action.

Indeed, there is a question as to what is meant by the declaration that the United States "would act to meet the common danger in accordance with its constitutional processes."

Does this mean that the president would ask Congress for authority to use our armed forces instantly, or that he would act and then ask for ratification of the steps he will have taken?

Or does it mean that the Truman-Acheson interpretation of the Constitution — presumably ignoring the war-making power of Congress whenever the executive chooses to disregard it — is to be the pledge implied in the forthcoming Korean-American defense pact?

Maybe Syngman Rhee isn't getting an assurance of an ironclad nature at all through the type of treaty at present being offered him by Washington.

That's why he wants a treaty with "automatic" intervention — that is, without any step requiring a request from the President for authority from Congress for immediate action.

The willingness of the President to sign any mutual defense treaty with Korea only is, of course a "going it alone" policy on the part of the United States.

It is detached from the U.N. as is the NATO treaty.

The critics who were so quick to jump on Sen. Taft recently when he stated plainly the facts of life with reference to the U.N. in the Far East, are strangely silent now and evidently see nothing wrong in a commitment with a single country that could obligate America to go to war on the mainland of Asia.

Surely the policy of the United States in the long run will have to be modified to negotiate a wider alliance like NATO for the Pacific after which all the bilateral pacts would be repealed or superseded.

More Improvement

By TRUMAN TWILL

What the French call a long chair or a chaise longue and Americans call a chase lounge, possibly because of its resemblance to a davenport, has blossomed out in all its glory as a piece of summer furniture.

In its evolution, it has sprouted wheels on two of its four legs, a removable mattress, an adjustable back rest and a status of respectability among he-men who once would have winced at the idea of that much solid comfort outside of a bedroom.

But now that the thing has started to acquire improvements, there are some more which should follow in short order.

There should be four wheels, instead of two wheels. These should be equipped with brakes so they can be locked securely in place when the occupant of the vehicle desires to stay in one place.

Otherwise, the wheels should be part of a system of propulsion on the order of an old-time Irish Mail. The occupant of the chaise longue should be able to propel himself over any ordinary terrain by pushing a handle back and forth.

On the safe assumption that if these improvements were added, the chaise then would be used indoors in the same way it is used outdoors, it would be possible for a householder to go to the kitchen for coffee, maneuver himself into position for a prizefight on TV or cuddle up in front of an open fire with a good book without over stirring off his broad-beamed back.

Moreover, the movable back rest should be adjustable by the occupant without rising. He should be able to assume any position he chooses by pumping a lever like that on a barber chair.

Thereafter, to make the thing still more perfect, a chaise should be equipped with saddle bags, one of which should be watertight for holding iced beverages. It should contain drawers for storing supplies like tobacco, matches, light reading matter, chewing gum, sun glasses and sunburn lotion.

It should have a built-in public-address system for superintending the toil of others who may be within superintending range.

As optional equipment, a purchaser should be able to buy a camouflage cover which would make it appear with a flick of the wrist that the chaise contains nothing but a stack of newspapers and an old fielder's mitt.

There is one more thing every chaise should have, and this is personal. It is a problem that arises with all comfortable furniture.

Someone should make a chaise with a built-in dog repellant. For six years, this designer has been eyeing a certain chaise with a view to stretching out on it if he ever found it free of dogs.

It is not that the dogs cannot be removed; they can be. But removing them is not worth the trouble. Having adopted the chaise, they are not tempted to sleep on other furniture.

The solution would seem to be the new improved chaise—with built-in dog repellant. Also with all other improvements herewith proposed to make the world's most comfortable piece of furniture so comfortable all those uncomfortable straight chairs will be thrown out.

Roadblock

Attacks on Rhee Increasing in Volume

By Jay G. Hayden

Events of the past few days have strengthened a view, urged for some time by the British and growing in favor among U.S. military men, that there can be no truce in Korea until Syngman Rhee, president of the South Korean republic, is kicked out.

Gen. Clark clearly squinted toward strong-arm methods in dealing with Rhee when he told the Communist negotiators that the truce is a matter "between the military commanders of both sides' and the "Republic of Korea does not command the Republic of Korea Army."

Clark added:

"Where necessary the United Nations command will, to the limit of its ability, establish military safeguards to insure that the armistice terms are observed."

While Rhee was reported as construing his language as a threat of U.S. coercion of his government, Communist spokesmen rejected the Clark assertions as no definite assurance that the "Rhee clique" would or could be controlled.

Most significant of all perhaps is the resignation of the South Korean defense minister, Shin Tae Yung, with accompanying reports that Gen. Sun Yup Paik, chief of staff of the South Korean Army, may resign.

Both these men are known to be in disagreement with Rhee, and Gen. Sun during the past few days has conversed at length with the U.S. Army chief of staff, Gen. Collins.

The latter accompanied Assistant Secretary of State Robertson of the mission, designed to placate Rhee.

While Robertson has been conferring exclusively with Rhee, Collins has been surveying the military situation, obviously with an eye to attitudes of both the South Korean commanders and their rank and file.

Since there are 19 South Korean divisions and only six American divisions on the fighting front, U.S. guaranty of a truce obviously is not worth much without assurance that the South Korean soldiers will remain responsive to United Nations command.

No doubt, President Rhee's spectacular release of 27,000 North Korean anti-Communist prisoners was as popular with the ROK soldiers as with Korean civilians. It may be that the soldiers, especially after time for reflection, are more impressed than their home folks as to the difficulty of fighting on by themselves without help of U.S. military supplies and money bags.

It was noted that President Rhee, in release of the prisoners, acted through a provost marshal, Lieut, Gen. Won Yong Duk, without refereene to Chief of Staff Sun Yup Paik or any other of the commanders of the fighting front.

When Chough Pyung, the university of Columbia-educated leader of the opposition party in Korea, spoke out against Rhee's course, he was first beaten up by hoodlums and then arrested for "inciting a public disturbance."

Chough once was Rhee's right-hand man, first as home minister and then as South Korean representative at the United Nations.

The British lost no time in branding Rhee's release of the prisoners as a "treacherous violation of the authority of the United Nations command to which the government of Korea agreed in 1950."

In its issue last week end the London Economist, which usually reflects the view of the British government, directly suggested displacement of Rhee.

It said:

"In order to save the truce and save South Korea it may be necessary to remove Mr. Syngman Rhee from office. Any proposal that Allied support for him should be withdrawn has hitherto broken down on the grounds that there is no other Korean leader who could take his place and rally and organize his people.

"The fact that he still finds it necessary to indulge in acts of terrorism against political opponents suggests that neither he nor his implacable intransigence are as popular in South Korea as he makes out.

"If he died, someone else would have to be found anyway. The war, moreover, has thrown up new leaders, both military and political, whose standing in the country today bears little relation to the political situation that existed before the intense phase of the national struggle began.

"Does President Rhee want to be removed like Napoleon to a remote place. . . . Where he could end his days peacefully and not without honour?"

Removing native satraps who interfere with their policies is a frequent British practice, but the United States traditionally has been more squeamish.

There was the case, however, when the first President Roosevelt stirred up a little revolution to get rid of a government of Colombia which was resisting U.S. construction of the Panama Canal.

Press and Pressures

By MARK DANA

It is difficult for outsiders to comprehend the relations, now more confusing then ever, between the Communist Party in Russia—which has only some 6 million members out of a population of 200 million—and what might be called the state. At the moment, Pravda, which is the official Communist Party organ, is hotly criticizing Tass, the official news agency of the state (Union of Soviet Socialist Republics) , whose correspondents it might be noted work openly in the U. S. and have the same in U. S. Government halls in Washington as do writers of the Associated Press, etc.

Pravda is especially distressed because some Communist Party committees "in Soviet Union republics have ceased to control the distribution of newspapers and periodicals." Some newspapers "defraud their readers by not publishing regularly." Tass is responsible, it seems, by disseminating faulty news, or not enough news, or news that is too old, and perhaps now hewing closely enough to the Communist Party line. It may be that the state (but not party) news agency isn't saturating its factual news sufficiently with indoctrination, and that is reprehensible, indeed. Juan Peron in Argentina knows what a serious situation that can be. Benito Mussolini would have bust a hame-string if, during his regime, an Italian newspaper had reported a child's drowning or the whelping of ten puppies or an Alpine avalanche without doctoring up the incident to prove the glories of Fascism.

Pravda points out sternly to the Soviet's so-called private publishers that newspapers can be of "great political importance," which is one of the season's understatements. A recent article published in Russia asserted that American children wear rags and are starving; that a swarm of them begged breadcrusts from a Russian ship in New York; that thousands of Americans would emigrate to Russia if permitted. That is where Russia's newspapers come in handy—spreading such Great Truths to Russia's 200 millions yearning for Truth! If they, and Tass, don't do a thorough job, who knows what lies—such as that almost every American family has a car, a radio set, and meat on the table—the people out on the steppes may step in?

"Copeland's Woods," in which the first Marion County Fair was held, was owned by Josiah Snell Copeland, who was born in 1793, a son of Elijah and Irene Howard Copeland, of Massachusetts. One of his puritan ancestors, John Alden, came to America in the Mayflower. Copeland represented Marion and Union Counties in the State Legislature in 1848 and 1850 as a Whig. Active in political affairs he became a Republican when that party was organized and frequently was a delegate to the state conventions. He served as internal revenue assessor from 1865 to 1870.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

It Could Be So Different

How much will come of President Eisenhower's designation of the Glorious Fourth as the 1953 Day of Prayer, after years of making the holiday a rip-roaring demonstration of chest-thumping, voice-throwing, hilarity and redlight crashing, remains to be seen, but the proclamation merits everybody's support.

Independence Day brings graphic meaning to the very word "independence" today. It no longer seems to Americans to be something merely reviving memories of colonial days and calling for fireworks and a rash of holiday orators.

A fellow has got to be more than a little dumb on July 4, 1953 not to treasure independence as a holy thing.

Concord, Lexington, Bunker Hill and Valley Forge may have seemed away back in dim distances for recent generations, but with independence wiped out or threatened all over the globe, the Minute Men, the ragged Continentals and their bloody footprints in the snow seem real and visible this day.

It could be that in a very large sense this Fourth of July, Yankee Doodle will come to town riding on a pony as always but that this time he will hitch his mount to a post, take a prayer book from the saddlebag and go thoughtfully and devoutly into the chapels of the templed hills.

This is a year when the chalice might well be taken more seriously than the skyrocket and when the altar candles could constitute a "set-piece" eclipsing the "grand pyrotechnic display" on the village green.

It wouldn't do America any harm if it could see Washington, Revere, Putnam and Prescott through stained glass windows and through the imagery of the mind of a man when on his knees in gratitude.

"With contrite hearts," says the President in his appeal to make the Fourth a day of prayer, "let us pray for God's help in solving the grave problems which confront us, and render thanks to Him for watching over our nation throughout its history."

And why not? This should be a hallowed day. The hour that glorifies the men who fought and died for American independence glorifies the kid in Korea, Japan, Germany and the outposts of the world.

In a sense, your boy is marching with the Minute Men and the Green Mountains Boys.

Almost every American fireside feels the sense of danger that kept the founding fathers alert, stout-hearted, and God fearing.

It's the fashion in some quarters to sneer at spiritual things and Ike's proclamation will be a target for the cynics, but it is our bet that there will be no sneering in the American home and that reverence and gratitude will make the best showing in years over boastful self - satisfaction, surface patriotism and whoopla.

Many a church taper will be lit instead of a firecracker. And even the guy rolling over the crowded highway to the Fourth of July clambake may have a moment when he won't feel that even Paul Revere's horse should get out of the way for him.

News of Other Years

TEN YEARS AGO — It was Friday, July 2, 1943.

Allied naval supremacy in the southwest Pacific appeared unchallenged as U. S. warships steamed deep into the northern Solomons, shelling a series of Japanese strongholds, while victorious American troops completed the conquest of Rendova Island after wiping out the enemy garrison.

Plane Cop Gets Okla. Speeders

OKLAHOMA CITY (UP) — Lt. Art Hamilton, a highway patrolman catches speeders the easy way —from an airplane.

Hamilton is the official pilot of the Oklahoma patrol's light traffic plane, which first went into service in 1949 as an aid to prevent traffic jams.

Before long, he was radioing information on traffic violations — such as passing on hills and curves —to ground units. Offending motorists, to put it mildly, were flabbergasted.

Speeders were more of a problem, though. He could see them easily enough from the air, but clocking speed of an automobile from an airplane presented a problem.

Finally, he hit on the solution of clocking time over a measured course with a stopwatch, and converting the reading into miles per hour with a mathematical chart. For mileage, he used the one-mile section-line roads that criss-cross Oklahoma like a waffle.

Accurate? Here's what the patrol discovered in a test at Stillwater, Okla., using radar and a private automobile driven by a Stillwater dealer.

On the first run, Hamilton and radar agreed at 44 miles per hour. The speedometer read 45. On the second, Hamilton and radar agreed again, this time at 53 miles per hour. The speedometer checked 55. On the last, radar showed 70 miles an hour. Hamilton figured 69. The speedometer showed 75.

Gov. Johnston Murray revealed Hamilton's operations at a governors' conference several months ago at New Orleans. Shortly afterwards, Louisiana authorities bought a plane of their own and Hamilton went to that state to teach patrolmen the finer points of using an airplane in the battle for traffic safety.

Smithsonian Has Tropical Island

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Smithsonian Institution, haven for fossils, shells, and relics of the dead past, includes in its domain a tropical island.

On Barro Colorado Island in the Panama Canal Zone life goes on much the same as it did 10,000 years ago. Every form of jungle life exists there from red chiggers to boa constrictors. Of the mammals, reptiles, birds, and amphibians that live in close harmony on the island, scientists have discovered hundreds of species heretofore unknown.

Barro Colorado is all that remains of an old hilltop above water when the Chagres River was damned to form Gatun Lake. About 25 years ago, the island was set aside as a wildlife preserve for scientific study.

Though life on this six-square-mile island is somewhat more crowded than in the average jungle, killing or capturing an animal or even plucking a wildflower is strictly forbidden.

The only man-made alterations on the entire island are a few trails used by naturalists and native guides familiar with the haunts of wild creatures. In addition, a small laboratory has been set up in a clearing at a remote section of the little jungle to provide living and study quarters for naturalists from all over the world.

With 25 years of study behind them, the Smithsonian people are able to report that, for all their findings, scientists are still a long way from solving the complicated myseries of jungle life.

Return of Wire Wheels Among New Revivals

Cost and Know How Provided Obstacles; Whip Sockets Next?

Where are the features of yesteryear—those flashing appurtenances that marked the well turned out automobile of 20 to 30 years ago? Don't look now, but some of them are back, and as earmarks of high fashion, too. Once commonplace, then out of the picture almost entirely, they have returned as premium items for the motorist in the market for that "something extra" — both appearance-wise and cost-wise.

Take wire wheels, for example. They served as marks of distinction on a few cars as far back as World War I. In the '20s and early '30s their use was so widespread as to place them in the standard, run of the mill category. Then they disappeared from American cars, superseded by solid steel disks that were stronger and easier to clean. In recent years automobile wheels to the eye have been mostly tires and huge, chromium-plated hub caps.

And now wire wheels are back, chiefly on sports cars and as optional equipment at extra cost on conventional models. Their return was superintended by automobile stylists trying to recover the affections of large numbers of buyers who turned to European models in the period of acute car shortage after World War II.

Hard To Rebuild Art

The popularity of wire-wheeled European autos was proof enough that demand for such wheels had not been dead but merely dormant and that it was thoroughly reawakened. The reaction of manufacturers in the United States is plain enough in 1953 lines.

In the February issue of Motor News, Scott Harris tells amusingly of some of the troubles that beset auto makers when they tried to recover the wire wheel trade. It seems they discovered the art of making wire wheels was virtually lost; and the price tag on imported sets was a robust $700.

A few of the old craftsmen of the '20s were found and their efforts cut the price to about $300 a set, all right for the luxury trade but a bit steep for the moderate price class.

One answer was the chrome plated wire wheel insert, a gadget that snaps into standard wheel and makes it look like an expensive wired job. Gaylord Products, Inc., Chicago, is a big noise in the wire wheel insert business—perhaps because of knowledge of wire gained in its years of experience as a leading maker of hairpins—and is doing a big volume in the new field.

Though wire wheels are the most glamorous current example of a back-from-the-dead automobile feature, there are others. What about the spare tire location? It's considered "continental" now to have the spare hanging out in the open in the rear, or even inserted in a fender well.

Not many years ago the poor old fellow whose spare tire was carried in some visible location just hadn't got around to buying a new car with the spare concealed in the trunk.

There are those who classify the convertible itself as an example of something that came back from a state of eclipse. When the inclosed car came in, it took over the field and folding tops were relegated to the file of painful memories. However, when it became possible to convert convertibles without danger to life and limb they came back. Next year maybe there'll be a buggy whip socket in the dash board.

VICTIM OF FOG REMAINS AGROUND. Aerial view pictures the 2,400 ton freighter Sandra, hard aground at Long Beach, Long Island, N.Y. The ship which has no radar apparently steered off course in a dense fog that persisted in the area. First attempts to float her during high tide were unsuccessful.

Warm Springs To Heat Budapest Homes

BUDAPEST (U.P.) — Hungary is expected to have around 7,500 tons of precious coal yearly by using the 69-degree (centrigrade) water of natural warm springs to heat apartments and houses, the newspaper Szabad Nep said.

The water from hot springs on St. Margaret's island, in the Danube, is to be piped several miles to houses in downtown Budapest. There are several other warm springs in the Budapest area that could be utilized in the same way.

One of the first attempts in the United States to protect children at work was a Massachusetts law in 1842, which limited the working day to 10 hours for children under 12.

Pitcairn Islanders Have Own Jargon

SYDNEY, Australia (UP)—Pitcairn-Islanders have a jargon all their own which Pastor Frederick Percival Ward calls "Pitcairnese."

Ward, a Seventh Day Adventist, who returned to Sydney arter 14 years on the lonely Pacific island where he got accustomed to greeting fellow islanders with "Bouy "Bou' y' bin?" explained Ward, means "about where are you going?" and could bring forth a reply such as "I gun up ah hill get one I barra's firewood." That meant the Pitcairner in question was going up the hill to get a barrow of firewood.

Ward believes some of the Pitcairners' speech deviations come from Tahitian — handed down through the centuries from the original survivors of the British warship Bounty, wrecked on the island.

Married Children, Parents Studied

SCHENECTADY, N. Y. (UP) — A pattern of "moderate help" will tend to develop better understanding between parents and their married children, a Union College sociologist believes.

Prof. Marvin B. Sussman, writing in the Journal of the American Sociologist Society, told of interviews with nearly 100 families in studying relationships of middle-class parents with their children after marriage.

"Under no circumstances," the professor wrote, "did parents feel that the childen should be supported by regular weekly or monthly money contributions except for emergency periods."

But he did find out that most parents thought their children appreciated indirect assistance and emergency aid.

He added that his study indicated that parents don't feel themselves freed from further responsibility after their children marry. He said there is more "give and take" between parents and their married children than many authorities believe.

Youth Admits Slaying Two In Wisconsin

Killed Publisher And Wife for No Reason, Tells Sheriff

SHELBYVILLE, Ind. (AP) — A husky 14 - year - old Wisconsin youth has admitted the fatal stabbing of a newspaper publisher and his wife at Sturgeon Bay, Wis., but he says, "I don't know why I did it."

"I know it's too late to be sorry," the 6-foot, 185-pound youth said yesterday as he signed a statement admitting the slaying of Sumner Harris, 53, publisher of the Door County (Wis.) Advocate, and is wife Grace, 50.

Shelby County Sheriff Robert Meltzer said the statement was made by James A. Duranty, who was arrested here early yesterday morning by two policemen who found him sleeping in a restroom at the Courthouse.

Duranty was booked at police headquarters on a charge of vagrancy, after telling police he was Joe Mead and that he lived in Michigan.

His identity was not established until shortly before dawn, when Sheriff Meltzer was called to investigate the report of an abandoned car in a ditch 3½ miles northeast of here.

The car, a late model sedan with Wisconsin plates, contained two suitcoats, a suticase and an eyeglass case with the name "Harris" written in ink on the inside cover.

The sheriff confronted the boy at the jail with the eyeglass case and a suit coat which matched the tweed trousers he was wearing. Then he admitted his identity, the sheriff said, and stated:

"I don't know why I did it. Something up there told me to do it." He pointed to his head.

Meltzer said Duranty signed a statement after Wisconsin authorities were notified of his arrest. A first degree murder warrant already had been issued against the boy in Wisconsin.

The sheriff said the boy's statement told of how he went to the Harris home Monday evening and knocked on the door. He said he attacked Mrs. Harris as soon as she answered the door, attempting to gag her with his hand.

His statement said she broke loose and he chased her into the kitchen but she got free again and tried to telephone police. He grabbed a knife "and stabbed her several times," Duranty said. "I think she must have died instantly."

He denied he abused her sexually, the sheriff said. Reports of the slayings said the woman's clothing had been ripped almost completely off.

Duranty said Harris returned home about two hours later, and he said he jumped at the publisher. "I dropped the knife while fighting with him," the boy related, "and he made a lunge for it." He said he recovered the weapon and stabbed Harris, "I don't know how many times. I think he died right away too."

Meltzer said the boy then told of returning home and writing the note. He then went to the Harris garage, took their car and drove through Michigan and to Indiana.

Duranty waived extradition and was to be picked up today by Door County Sheriff Hallie Rowe.

Govt. $9 Billion in Red in Fiscal Year

Income at Record High —But Deficit Mounts

WASHINGTON (AP)—The government collected more taxes in the last 12 months than in any other year in the nation's history, but still ran up a deficit of $9,389,000,000.

And it is going to start off the new fiscal year, which began yesterday, by borrowing 5½ to 6 billion dollars—the biggest new borrowing since the war.

Sen. Byrd (D-Va), noting these figures, said in an interview today he doubts the Eisenhower administration will be able to make good on tax reduction promises next year without budget cuts deeper than now planned. Unless there are economies not now in sight, Byrd said, he fears this fiscal year's red ink entry will be nearly as large as last year's.

"I just don't see how there can be any new tax reductions in the face of these tremendous deficits," the Virginia senator said. "The loss in revenue from the reductions automatically scheduled to take place on Jan. 1 apparently is not going to be offset by reductions in spending."

Personal income taxes are due to drop 10 per cent on Jan. 1. And the excess profits tax, which the administration wants extended, would expire then if Congress grants Eisenhower's request.

Announcing details of government finances in the fiscal year which ended Tuesday, Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey said today that:

1. The government spent $74,607,420,232.16 from July 1, 1952, through June 30, 1953, compared with $66,145,246,957.62 in the previous 12 months. This was only 14 million dollars more—a minute difference in government accounting—than former President Truman had estimated in January.

2. The government's net income in fiscal 1953 was $65,218,336,562.73, some three billion dollars more than the previous record year in fiscal 1952, when net income was $62,128,606,579.52 but nearly 3½ billion dollars less than the $68,697,000,000 Truman estimated.

3. This meant a fiscal 1953 deficit of $9,389,083,669.43, more than double the $4,016,640,378.10 the government went in the red in the previous fiscal year and nearly 3½ billion dollars more than the $5,896,000,000 deficit Truman estimated.

4. The public debt rose from $259,105,178,785.53 to $266,071,061,638.57.

5. The government's cash balance—the ready cash it keeps in banks around the country as a working fund to meet daily bills—sank during the year from $6,968,827,604.31 to $4,670,248,248.06. Only the fact the administration lowered the balance by $2,299,000,000 to pay bills instead of borrowing kept the debt from increasing that much more than it did.

Police Rule Knife Wound of Woman Self-Inflicted

Police ruled today that a knife wound in the abdomen of a Toledo woman taken to Marion City Hospital early Wednesday morning from 1004 Gebhardt St., was self-inflicted.

Police Chief Tom Coon said officers were called to this address at 2:01 a.m. and found Mrs. Della Lewis lying on the floor of the front porch.

Witnesses said Mrs. Lewis cut herself with the knife after an argument with a man in front of the house. They said she first fell down in the street after inflicting the knife wound.

She was taken to the hospital and treated for the wound and was later released.

Police arrested the man with whom she was arguing and after questioning charged him only with intoxication. He was fined $10 and costs when he pleaded guilty to this charge in Municipal Court Wednesday.

Estimate 290 Will Die Over Holiday

CHICAGO (AP) — The National Safety Council estimated today that 290 persons could be killed in auto accidents this Fourth of July holiday week end.

The council also estimated that 40 million American motorists who will burn up about 27,000 railroad tank cars of gasoline in traveling a total of about four billion miles during the two-day holiday.

"Speed is the principal factor in serious accidents," said Ned H. Dearborn, council president. "It works two ways — gives you less time and less control in an accident situation and greatly increases the chance of death or serious injury if an accident does happen.

"Speed control is self-control. So slow down and live."

U.S. Jets Bomb Red Tanks In Surprise Raid

SEOUL (AP)—U. S. Sabre jet fighter-bombers surprised 30 to 40 Communist tanks in a camouflaged valley just behind the Western Front today and saturated the area with 1,000 pound bombs.

Black smoke filled the valley, making an accurate count of wrecked tanks impossible, the Fifth Air Force said.

Not since early in the war has a comparable concentration of Red armor been spotted so near the front in Korea.

The Eighth Army, meanwhile, reported that heavy fighting cost the Reds 36,000 killed and wounded last month—the equivalent of about three Red divisions.

The Communists answered with the heaviest artillery and mortar fire of the war. Almost 1½ million rounds hit Allied lines during June, virtually double the previous monthly record, the Eighth Army said.

The front was relatively quiet Thursday. South Korean troops drove Chinese off a dominant knob on Finger Ridge during the night, the Eighth Army said.

asked in the budget submitted last January by former President Truman.

Eisenhower reiterated his personal endorsement of the Air Force budget in a letter yesterday to Rep. Scriver (R-Kan), chairman of the appropriations subcommittee that wrote the bill.

The President referred to "the ever-present struggle . . . of service partisans for a larger proportion of the defense dollar" and to "the current effort to pile dollars upon unexpended dollars in Air Force appropriations."

"Through better programming and organization," he wrote, "we will attain more combat air power more swiftly than would otherwise have been likely of achievement."

Scrivner read the letter to the House yesterday as it started debate on the biggest appropriation bill of the year.

BridgeBombed In Belfast

Seen As Protest Of Queen's State Visit

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP)—Irish extremists time-bombed a railroad bridge and Belfast's power supply went dead today, apparently in protest against Queen Elizabeth's state visit to the British-held northern part of divided Ireland.

A bomb on a rail bridge near the southern border blocked rail traffic between Dublin and Belfast for several hours. It was an apparent attempt to stop special trains bringing Southern Irish to see the Queen, but the excursions went through on time.

Hours later trouble at Belfast's main powerhouse brought streetcars and trolleys to a halt. Thousands were delayed coming into the city to watch Queen Elizabeth II and the Duke of Edinburgh in a royal procession.

The royal pair arrived yesterday for a three-day visit as part of the Queen's coronation celebrations.

A minority of the Northern Irish are antiroyalist. They oppose continued partition of the six North Irish counties—a part of the United Kingdom—from the Irish Republic.

Improving Gradually, Ike Says

Judgment on Republican Achievements Reserved

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower's moderate statement about the achievements of the Republican party can be taken as a suggestion to both friends and critics of his administration to suspend judgment awhile.

At his news conference yesterday he said the Republican party is gradually showing its ability to assume responsibility and carry it out.

In using the word "gradually," he seemed to be making a frank admission that his party, in control of the government since last January, has been something less than a ball of fire.

At the same time this can be interpreted as meaning he expects his administration to be judged more on what it does in the future than on what it has done to date.

What the Republican-controlled Congress has done in the past six months in the way of legislation has not been much, and not much is expected of it before it closes up shop for the year.

Since so much human reaction is based on high hope or great disappointment, it is not unusual for judgments to be extreme. Undoubtedly there have been extreme judgments already on the first six months of the Republican administration: that it has been wonderful or that it has been terrible.

Neither at the moment seems fair or accurate. The truth probably lies somewhere between the two extremes, which is what Eisenhower may have had in mind when he refrained from praising or criticizing what the Republican Congress has done in 1953.

Actually, any attempt at fair appraisal of the success or failure of the Eisenhower administration will have to wait at least another year. By the time of the 1954 congressional elections the voters should have a pretty clear idea of what the score is.

In the first place, there was the problem of the budget. As is customary, President Truman submitted his budget to Congress early in January. In other years, when the President who submitted the budget was going to continue as President, Congress went to work on it at once with its appropriations committees to examine it, try to reduce it, and finally pass the money bills.

This year it was known that Eisenhower would have his own people submit, in the short time they had, a budget of their own. Therefore, Congress was delayed several months in considering appropriations. Only one appropriation bill has been passed so far and sent to the White House for signature.

Both houses passed the bill giving states control of the underwater oil off their coasts out to a line still undetermined. And both houses gave the President an extension on limited controls over certain materials.

But while the House has passed a statehood for Hawaii bill and a one-year extension of the Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act, the Senate has acted on neither. The Senate no doubt will pass the Reciprocal Trade Act but practically no one expects it to go along with the House on Hawaii statehood.

Both houses are expected to extend the excess profits tax for six months. The delay on this was due mainly to one man, a New York Republican, Chairman Daniel A. Reed of the House Ways and Means Committee.

And that will probably be all that Congress accomplishes this year. It was a Congress in which the Republicans, who had spent almost 20 years criticizing the Democrats, suddenly found themselves in the position of responsibility and, as Eisenhower pointed out, it took them time to get used to it.

Eisenhower himself in these first six months has also had the problem of adjustment: in the new job as president and in trying to get along with Congress. He has moved with extreme mildness and caution.

Next year Eisenhower and the Republican - controlled Congress will have had plenty of time to fit into their new jobs. What they accomplish next year, or fail to, will be a much truer measure of their worth than what happened in 1953.

Says Farmers Losing Money Because of Big Wheat Crop

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ohio wheat farmers are losing money because of a bumper crop, Rep. Polk (D—Ohio) said today.

They can't get enough for their wheat on the open market, he said, and have trouble leasing storage space in order to secure government loans. Polk is a member of the House Agriculture Committee.

The government normally will loan a farmer 90 per cent of the wheat parity price—now $2.26 a bushel—if he chooses to store the wheat in sealed bins. If he can't get a higher price later, the government allows him to pay off the loan with his wheat.

There is such a surplus of wheat that the government Wednesday placed market quotas on the 1954 crop. In Ohio, Polk said, many owners won't lease bins to farmers in the hope of buying their wheat because of current low price—about $1.50 a bushel.

The Department of Agriculture last week told Ohio farmers they could use "emergency" bins—any bin with a roof and a floor.

However, only 80 per cent of the amount loaned on properly stored wheat is allowed on wheat in these emergency bins.

"I regret the department didn't issue this order at an earlier date," said Polk.

Polk said he received a call from a small banker in his district Wednesday morning. The banker told him cash wheat No. 2 was selling in Cincinnati for $1.53 a bushel.

"Actually," said Polk, "most farmers get even less than that, say about $1.40, because combined wheat contains a lot of moisture."

The vice president and legislative representative of the Ohio Farm Bureau, Douglas Stanfield of Columbus, wrote Polk that the Ohio wheat crop this year probably will amount to 50 to 60 million bushels, compared with around 40 million in a normal year.

Richwood Track Sets 300-Lap Race

The Richwood Speedway will be the scene of the biggest July 4 auto race in the state Saturday night. Thirty-three cars will start in a 300-lap race on the quarter-mile track located at the Richwood Fairgrounds.

John Collier, promoter at the track, said a heavy out-of-town entry list is expected. He said, however, none of the foreign drivers are expecteed to win over the regular drivers which include Joe Jones, Dick Decker, Jack Hedges, Jim Hamilton and Jim Church.

The 300-lap event will be strictly stock with no motors later than 1947 allowed. It will mark the first such race attempted at the Richwood track. A three-foot trophy will go to the winner.

Cut Down By Flying Wreckage At Crash Scene

CLEVELAND (AP) — Mrs. Ruby Fowler, trying to run away from a train-automobile crash, was cut down and killed today by a flying piece of the demolished car.

The accident happened at nearby Eastlake as a car she was riding in stalled in the path of the New York Central System's Chicago-to-New York "Pacemaker."

Howard Schulz, driver of the car, and two others escaped. Schulz said his right wheel went off the road as he swerved to avoid a car approaching the crossing from the opposite direction.

He, his wife and a 15-year-old boy ran west. Mrs. Fowler, 56, ran the other way. Both her legs were nearly severed.

Racket Figure Loses 7-Year Fight for Freedom

WARREN, O. (AP) — Frank Cammarata—racket figure who fought seven years against being returned to prison—was headed back to Michigan and jail today.

Trumbull County authorities turned him over to Michigan representatives on an extradition warrant signed by Ohio's Gov. Frank J. Lausche.

Trumbull authorities brought him here Wednesday night from the Cuyahoga County Jail, where he had been held since June 13.

Immigration officials arrested him for deportation then, but later said they would recognize a claim in Michigan, where he is wanted to complete a prison sentence.

Cammarata was sentenced to a 15-to-30-year term for bank robbery in Michigan in 1930. He was paroled in 1936 so he could be deported. He returned to the United States illegally in 1939, but was not apprehended by authorities until 1946.

He then began his fight against extradition.

Ice Goes Out and Lake Couple Lives Again

TUPPER LAKE, N. Y. (UP) — When the ice goes out of Big Tupper Lake each spring it is of passing interest to most residents here but to Mr. and Mrs. Charles Whittemore it's a big day.

Caretakers at a lodge on the west shore of the lake, inaccessible by road, the Whittemores manage to get to and from town in the summer by boat, and in the winter over the ice.

But for a few weeks each fall, before the lake freezes, and each spring when the ice is unsafe to cross, they are marooned.

Lightning can strike steel-topped automobiles without injuring people in them.

Idyllic Spain

By Inez Robb

SEVILLE, Spain

Spain, to stop beating around the bush, is wonderful.

It is all the wide American West rolled into one: Arizona, New Mexico, Idaho, Wyoming, Colorado and Nevada. It is California without Hollywood and Texas without oil. In all of Western Europe, no land save Switzerland is more mountainous; none more fascinating.

INEZ ROBB

But in the beginning it is bound to be hard on the American tourist, protected as he is at home from the stunning impact of scenery on the half shell by the all-pervading billboard.

-:-

IN SPAIN, the billboard is virtually non - existent. We have just driven almost a thousand miles across the high plains of Castille and through the rolling, often rugged terrain of Andalusia with nothing between us and the sun-drenched view except dark glasses.

Not a single roadside hot - dog stand, motel, service station, tourist home, hooked-rug concession, vegetable booth or ice cream store has broken the monotony of pure, unadulterated scenery.

The Spaniards, obviously, have the quaint idea that commerce should be confined to towns and villages.

This novel approach has given the Robbs an unadulterated glimpse of Spain harvesting her wheat over this wide area.

—:—

IN THIS peninsula, they are bringing in the sheaves as they were brought in two, perhaps, three thousand years ago.

For Spain, outside her big cities, is a civilization almost wholly untouched by the machine age. Any American weary of 'rassling' with a completely mechanized world can get away from it on a Spanish farm.

In a thousand miles, we have counted three tractors and three small threshing machines.

Spain is powered not by machine but by man and burro. What the two can accomplish in combination is flabbergasting. The burro is the tractor, the truck and the combustible engine of all work in this ancient land.

The pelican, whose beak holds twice as much as his bellican, has nothing on the burro. This Spanish canary can carry thrice as much on his back as any motorized hack in existence.

—:—

AT FIRST I was somewhat alarmed to see vast loads of hay, grain, bricks and what-not moving across the fields seemingly under their own power.

Now I know that somewhere, concealed beneath the mountain, is a burro.

In Spain, only man works harder than the burro. All over this land, wheat is being cut today by small hand sickle. Other men bind and stack it. Eventually the burro carries the wheat to the thresing floor, a circle 20 to 30 feet in diameter with hard surface.

Now the grain is spread evenly on the floor. Next the farmer hooks up two, three or four mules and drives them round and round the threshing floor until all should be dizzy as coots.

IF THE FARMER is ultra modern, he sits on a small, sled-like vehicle with a dozen wheels eight-to-ten inches in diameter and rides round and round with the mules.

Finally, the farmer waits for a breezy day. Then he takes his wooden pitchfork, tosses grain and chaff into the air and hopes the breeze will separate the two without further time or trouble.

Of course, the sight of so much hard physical labor may so exhaust the average American tourist that he will scream for billboards.

On the other hand, it may also give him his last fascinating glimpse of ancient days and ancient ways.

Plan to Reopen Airport West Of Kenton

Special to The Star

KENTON—Plans are under way for the reopening of the airport facilities, west of Kenton, owned by the Hardin County Commissioners.

A group of young men who plan to organize under the title of Hardin Airport, Inc., have announced plans to promote the reopening of the runway and other necessary facilities. They met at the Longbrake Die and Mold plant Tuesday night.

County commissioners said they would lease the airport facilities to the group if some solution can be worked out whereby the county would not be held responsible for any damages or law suites in case of accidents.

The group will be incorporated under the names of Robert L. Stewart and G. W. Longbrake with Hugh Kaylor as agent. Richard E. Allen, William Bruce, John W. York, Donald A. Taylor and William E. Drews of near Lakeview have been selected trustees. Incorporate papers will be filed by attorney Hugh Kaylor.

NEVADA CHURCH PROGRAM

"The Christian's Independence Day" will be the subject of the sermon Sunday morning at the Nevada Lutheran Church. Lutheran Week at Lakeside on Lake Erie will be held next week, with young people from Nevada attending the Lutheran Lakeside Summer School. Plans are being made for observance of communion at the Nevada church the following Sunday. Arrangements are being made for the lawn social and cafeteria supper July 16 at the church, with a concert by the Nevada Band.

"HERE TO STAY" SAYS BOBO. Barbara Sears "Bobo" Rockefeller, estranged wife of millionaire Winthrop Rockefeller, who took possession of his Park Avenue, New York, apartment, holds a sidewalk press conference just a few yards from the impressive doorway. Surrounding her are a battery of newsreel cameramen and news photographers and reporters. "I'm here to stay," she told newsmen who already had been informed that her lawyers had assured her she could move in. "I just rang the doorbell and entered," she stated. Winthrop Rockefeller was repotrtedly in Little Rock, Ark., for a "quickie" divorce.

AUTO CATCHES FIRE

A $5 loss was estimated in a minor blaze in a car at the corner of Church and Prospect Sts. at 2:55 p.m. Wednesday. The car belonged to I. B. Hansen, of Cleveland. Firemen from the Central station said the fire was caused when the carburetor backfired and set fire to gas and oil. The fire had been put out by the time they arrived at the scene.

Hardin Co. Health Merger Defeated

Special to The Star

KENTON — Mayors from Hardin County villiages and chairmen of the Hardin County trustees turned down a proposal to combine the Kenton City and Hardin County Health departments at a special meeting Tuesday night.

The proposal, which would have combined the two departments and kept them in operation until the first of the year without added expense to give officials time to make arrangements for financing the program, was defeated 18 to 1.

The combination program had already been approved by the city of Kenton which had set up a budget from Jan. 1, 1954, to take care of the city's added expense for the move.

The village mayors and trustees indicated that they did not feel the townships, which would have to share the expense, were able financially to support the system.

City Now Is Landlord For People in Vet Housing Project

Residents living in the Veterans Housing Project on W. Fairground St. have a new landlord today but need not fear any increases in their rental fees.

Ownership and operation of approximately half of the slightly more than 20-acre project was taken over Wednesday by the City of Marion.

Negotiations for purchase of 10.9 acres of the federal owned land and buildings from the Public Housing Authority began more than a year ago.

City Council approved the purchase for $3,276 last November and all negotiations were completed just recently. The deed granting title of the property to the city was dated to become effective on July 1.

No change in the method of operation of the project is planned by city officials, according to Ralph Forrest, safety-service director.

Rental fees for each of the 48 units in the project will remain at $29 a month, with the rentors paying their own utilities with the exception of garbage and trash collection which is included in the rental fee.

The city stands to add some $7,450 a year to its operating funds through the purchase of the nearly 11 acres of the project.

This means that in the first year of operation, income from the property will pay for the purchase and likely will provide enough additional funds for purchase of the remaining slightly more than 10 acres of the project, according to City Auditor Elmer Shaw.

City Council also approved the purchase of the other half of the project last November. Negotiations for this purchase probably will begin when the government sets a definite price on the remaining approximately 10 acres, Shaw said. City officials are now waiting for the government to offer the remainder of project for sale to the city, and providing the price is acceptable the purchase may be made.

During the past year of operation, the income from the project amounted to about $16,700 and of this amount, the federal government cleared $7,457.91 over the cost of operation, Shaw said.

Mayor Harold F. Robinson favored the purchase in Council meeting last year. He pointed out that after the housing units no longer are fit for human habitation they may be torn down and the land used to increase the size of Lincoln Park.

The Pony League Softball League early this year asked Council for permission to use a portion of the property for ball diamond. Delay in the actual granting of the deed to the city by the government caused postponement of League plans to erect lights for night games until next year.

CONFESSES TRUCK HOLDUPS

COSHOCTON, O. (AP)—Sheriff Gilbert Kemps says a 16-year-old Blissfield youth arrested in Steubenville Tuesday night has confessed to five robberies of truckers in the Coshocton area.

LOSES TAX BATTLE. Loser in his bitter fight to let the excess profits tax die, Rep. Daniel Reed (R), New York, chairman of the powerful, tax-writing House ways and means committee, wipes his brow on the Capitol steps and tells newsmen his committee will begin tax revision hearings July 8. This means the excess profits tax will expire at midnight June 30, but GOP chiefs say the six-month extension act will be made retroactive to June 30 so that the government will lose no revenue if the legislation passes.

Tribute Paid Publisher In Legislature

COLUMBUS, O. (AP)—Resolutions of tribute to W. J. Galvin, Wilmington publisher who died Monday night, were offered in both houses of the Legislature Wednesday.

The Senate resolution, offered by Sen. Lowell Fess (R-Greene), was adopted by a rising vote. The House resolution, sponsored by Rep. Sam Nicely (R - Clinton), probably will be adopted today. Action was delayed by House rules.

Galvin was editor and publisher of the Wilmington News-Journal and president of a corporation which publishes the Lima Daily News, the Washington Court House Record-Herald, te Logan Daily News, the Circleville Herald and the Van Wert Times-Bulletin.

Galvin, a number of years ago, was a member of the state board of agriculture. He also was a widely known horseman.

Wind Damage Slight; Rain Brings Relief

Wind which accompanied a much needed rain in the southern part of Marion County Wednesday afternoon caused only minor damage in that area but brought slight relief from 95-degree temperature in this vicinity.

In Waldo, three large trees fell across the road at the southern edge of the town, causing traffic to be rerouted around the town for a time.

During the night, rain was general around this area, a welcome sight to farmers whose corn and bean crops have been in need of rain. A total of .12 of an inch of rain was reported by local weather observers.

Low temperature last night was recorded at 66, while a year ago, there was a high of 85 and a low of 65. At noon today, the mercury stood at 85.

Although some relief was brought to northern Midwest areas by cool air from Canada and the Pacific, hot and muggy weather continued in most other sections in the eastern half of the country.

Today was forecast to be continued hot and partly cloudy with scattered thundershowers, with the showers to continue tonight, followed by partly cloudy and cooler Friday. For the Fourth of July holiday week end, hot and humid weather appeared in prospect for wide areas in the eastern half of the country.

New Medical Research Center Opened by Govt.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The government threw open the doors today to a new kind of medical research center devoted to conquering such killers as cancer and heart disease.

Secretary of Welfare Hobby formally dedicated the 64 million dollar clinical center of the National Institutes of Health with these words:

"This center is . . . new evidence that the American government continues to be responsible to the people and to the needs of the people."

The 14-story structure, five years in the building, is in the rolling countryside near Bethesda, Md., a Washington suburb. Congress provided funds for construction, and will vote money for operating costs.

The center's first patients, eight women suffering from cancer, will be admitted Monday—the first of a capacity of 500 non-paying patients.

N.Y. Stock Quotations

NEW YORK (AP) — Railroads again sparked a rise in the stock market today for the second straight day.

Considerable optimism was generated by the fact that business expanded as prices climbed.

The advance in the rail section went to a bit better than a point. Elsewhere it was cut off generally below a point.

Stepping higher with the rails were steels, motors, most coppers, rubbers, many aircrafts, and oils.

Higher stocks include New York Central, Illinois Central, Chrysler, Bethlehem Steel, Kennecott Copper, and Texas Co.

Gas Storage Bill Approved By Committee

Ohio House Group OK's Much Amended Senate Measure

COLUMBUS, O. (AP)—The House Mines Committee today recommended passage of a bill authorizing gas companies to appropriate land for underground gas storage to within 3,000 feet of any mine.

Acting under orders of legislative leaders to "get a bill out," members voted 6-2 for the much-amended measure at the end of a hearing lasting nearly six hours. One member didn't vote and two were absent for final roll call.

The Senate passed the bill by Sen. David M. Ferguson (R-Guernsey) April 7 but the Cambridge gas and oil man would hardly recognize it now. The House committee, after holding it nearly three months, added amendments designed to placate coal operators and miners.

The coal interests demanded restrictions that gas firms claimed would wreck storage operations needed to meet heavy winter demands by homes and industries for coal's rival fuel.

Major gas companies pump gas imported from the Southwest during the summer into vast underground reservoirs for use during winter months.

The companies asked authority to condemn land or require leases for gas storage to expand operations to meet the increasing demand for natural gas in the state. The Ferguson bill sought to grant that authority.

Coal men sought restrictions in a separate bill that the Senate Agriculture and Conservation committee scrapped following protests.

A Senate measure by Sen. Oakley C. Collins (R-Lawrence), a coal man, sought to ban underground gas storage within 4,000 feet of mines.

A House mines subcommittee tried to combine the Ferguson and Collins measures but the full committee refused to buy it. The committee then sought to change the Ferguson bill by adding much of the Collins measure as an amendment proposed by Rep. Martin A. Lingler (R-Butler).

Thirteen witnesses testified for and against the proposal and the committee held two executive sessions before rejecting the 24-page amendment to the 1½ page bill.
